Objective of the Programme:-

Good verbal communication and interpersonal skills are essential for collaborating with others, communicating to your supervisor, and speaking with customers or clients. This means speaking clearly, concisely, and loudly (but not too loud), while building a good rapport with your audience. Successful communication helps us better understand people and situations. It helps us overcome diversities, build trust and respect, and create conditions for sharing creative ideas and solving problems.

Outcome of the Programme

Great communicators frequently ask questions to give people an opportunity to share their knowledge and express their opinions. Great communicators give themselves permission to listen to others; in this way, they understand what people are thinking. They know how to balance speaking and listening effectively. The nature of communication is exchanging ideas, feelings, information, data, or values between two or more individuals in a one-way or two-way system. For a communication process to take place, there should be a sender and receiver.
