Outcome of the Programme

Great communicators frequently ask questions to give people an opportunity to share their knowledge and express their opinions. Great communicators give themselves permission to listen to others; in this way, they understand what people are thinking. They know how to balance speaking and listening effectively. The nature of communication is exchanging ideas, feelings, information, data, or values between two or more individuals in a one-way or two-way system. For a communication process to take place, there should be a sender and receiver.

PROGRAMME REPORT

Name of the programme : A One Week Faculty Development Programme on
"Communication skills"

Dates : 01-08-2016 to 6-08-2016

Details of Resource Person:

Name : Rufina.S.Johnson
Designation : Assoc. Professor
Organization : PESCON, Kuppam
Ph. No : 9550839093
Mail. Id : rufijohn123@gmail.com

Objective of the Programme:

Good verbal communication and interpersonal skills are essential for collaborating with others, communicating to your supervisor, and speaking with customers or clients. This means speaking clearly, concisely, and loudly (but not too loud), while building a good rapport with your audience. Successful communication helps us better understand people and situations. It helps us overcome diversities, build trust and respect, and create conditions for sharing creative ideas and solving problems.

TOPIC OF NURSING

Topics covered:

- Clarity
- Completeness
- Coherence
- Conciseness
- Credibility
- Correctness
- Continuity

Outcome of the Programme:

Great communicators frequently ask questions to give people an opportunity to share their knowledge and express their opinions. Great communicators give themselves permission to listen to others; in this way, they understand what people are thinking. They know how to balance speaking and listening effectively. The nature of communication is exchanging ideas, feelings, information, data, or values between two or more individuals in a one-way or two-way system. For a communication process to take place, there should be a sender and receiver.

Communication systems are connected together through cables, wires, antennas or electromagnetic waves. Designers of communication systems may be trained in electrical engineering, electronics engineering or a related discipline. Due to the fact that there are four types of communication in the workplace, verbal (in-person), body language, phone conversations and written communications, understanding that each of your employees probably reacts better to one form over the other is vital for successful communication.

Decision-making skills hinge on your "ability to see, understand, and articulate the outcomes of actions," said executive coach Debbie Radish-Respass. They help you quickly and efficiently analyse a situation so you can choose paths that will ultimately lead to the best possible outcomes. Decision making is the process of making choices by identifying a decision, gathering information, and assessing alternative resolutions. Using a step-by-step decision-making process can help you make more deliberate, thoughtful decisions by organizing relevant information and defining alternatives.
